The New York World relates the followincident in connection with the execuion in that city of Frank Ferris for the murder of his wife:

ing them away from the Tombs before the execution was neglected. The result of the oversight was one that many of those who heard what occurred as the execution was going on will, perhaps, never forget. Just as the last words of the culprit had been pronounced, the cry of a child, long and piercing at first, and then in tones of terror, screaming out "Father, oh, my father!" resounded through the halls of the new prison. Many a strong man turned pale at the sound, and many a lip quivered that, perhaps, never moved lip quivered that, perhaps, never moved emotion in such scenes as that be-The cry was that of the little boy, to call father, at least was made aware, by to call father, at least was made aware, by some means or another, of the terrible scene outside the walls. Whether the last earthly voice heard by the dying father was that soul-rending cry of his child no one can ever tell. Let us hope his ear was deafened to all worldly sounds before that cry went up with such horror blended in its echoes as to make strong men quake and tremble with dismay.

M. Obin, a French opera singer, having ingenerous creature—presists in taking to the opera whenever her ex-lord is cast in characters the costume of which is particularly repulsive, and calculated to destroy the child's respect for her father.

A funny occurrence took place lately at a Boston theatre. During the dialogue, while an actor was representing a nobleman, a lady and four servants were upon the stage and the conversation suddenly came to a halt. Somebody had neglected or forgotten his "cue." The prompter gave the word again and again, till many of the audience could have supplied the of the audience could have supplied the hiatus—finally, however, the chief of the servants became aware that it was his urn to speak, and gave the properence, which, by a singular coincidence covery. There was no time to lose. Uncle Sam's tax-gatherer at once presented himself before the cantatrice, and, in as few words as possible, gave her to understand that on the 49,000 dollars in gold, which the indomitable Max had paid a day or two previously, eighteen hundred dollars and some odd cents was due to the government. The fair Italian demurred. She was not a citizen of this great country; she had never taken the oath of allegiance; she owed nothing to the revenue-collectors or anybody else; and, to cut the matter short, it was intimated to the shovel-nosed collector that he might as well be gone about his business: the swindle would not be submitted to. Tax-gatherers, however, are proverbially persistent. The fellow would not be gone. Zucchi took advice, and finally paid the money, in a storm of melodramatic passion, (under protest.)

Rossini had a collaborator in no less a personage than collaborator in the composition of the maintain that the prime minister. One day Meternich called on the mestro, and found him working at the "Semiramide." Looking over the subject in hand the diplomatist found it cold and uninteresting, void of dramatic movement, and much below the subjects into which the great Mozart had influed his spirit. Telling Rossini as much, he set to work signing the "Frencet end as Leben." There, my friend, he cried, "why don't your work?" Rossini was so taken with the idea that he conceived the store of Mozart into your work?" Rossini was so taken with the idea that he conceived the notion of making the passage the dominant motive of his new opera. It was a happy plagiarism, for Metternich himself could not have forescend how much Rossini would make of the interpolated morsel.

At Painesville, Ohio, is a very popular female seminary, where the young ladies are kept under the most careful surveil-lance, and where one would naturally suppose a tempter could not gain admission. Except on Wednesday afternoon, male visitors are not admitted, and then no opportunity is afforded for obtaining private interviews.

Attracted by the reputation of this school, and anxious to afford his child every advantage in his power, Mr. John Colwell, a farmer living near Erie, Pennsylvania, sent his daughter Delia, a very pretty girl some sixteen years of age, to this seminary. For some time her conduct was such as to command the respect and esteem of her teacher, and to win for her the enviable position of the model scholar in the institution. She excelled both in scholarship and conduct, and the most flattering accounts were forwarded to her parents.

During one of the Wednesday receptions, a young man named Henry Brand, tions, a young man named Henry Brand, plausible and well dressed, yet having no phasishe and well dressed, yet having no regular occupation, became acquainted with Miss Colwell, and, from the sequel, it is apparent, succeeded in making a favor-able impression. Evading the rules of the school, stolen interviews were man-aged between the pair, and a clandestine aged between the pair, and a ciandestine correspondence kept up for some weeks without detection. They at last became careless, and the matron of the seminary, discovering the affair, forbid Miss Colwell leaving the house after dark, and put a stop to the visits of young Brand upon re-ception days. The precaution was taken too late for the happiness of the poor girl, who, loving the young man, had placed her honor and her life in his keeping. She determined not to be debarred the bundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by both of said punishments. A case involving the liability of common carriers has been tried in the Supreme Court, Circuit Part Three. The Health of the Emperor-He Seeks Repose of Mind and Body - Austria Disarming-Mexican Affairs from a Parisian Stand Point.

Paris, Tuesday, Oct. 9, 1866. Information from a reliable resource, which I continue to receive from Biaritz respecting the Emperor's health, fully confirms the representations I have previously made to you on that important subject. The Emperor's bodily condition is such as is likely to "keep him quiet," while it offers no ground for immediate or serious apprehension. Louis Napoleon is while it offers no ground for immediate or serious apprehension. Louis Napoleon is no longer a young man, and he feels that this is the case. He also feels that his health is not what it has been, and that he begins to show symptoms of wear and tear, both physically and mentally. He is no longer so much disposed as he once was to courir les aventures—to try experiments, either in way, or politics, but he future. According to these people, who profess to see further into a mill-stone than their neighbors, the present tranquillity of Europe and pacific aspect of France are altogether hollow and delusive. The Emperor, they say, is "only waiting till the Exhibition is over," before he sets Europe. The aid received from the Governthey say, is "only walking till Exhibition is over," before he sets rope in a blaze, and goes to war with Germany for the frontiers of the RI I confess I do not at all share in the sets of the RI on the sets of the RI on the sets of the RI I confess I do not at all share in the sets of the RI of the sets of the sets of the RI of the sets of the RI of the sets of t recent language when addressing the Frussian Chamber, and which was used mainly, I think, as a device to wheedle money out of that economical and thrifty body of Germans. Look at Austria, for instance. We learn that she is wisely disarming "on a vast scale," far below her usual peace establishment. Soon, it appears, that this vast military monarchy will not have over 200,000 men under arms. The cadres have been broken up, and numbers even of superior officers placed on half pay. One would almost say that Austria had taken a leaf out of the book of America, and was following the example of the latter after the war. The official Gazette of Vienna uses the most pacific language, and declares that Austria is nourishing neither resentment nor arriere-peasee, but accepts claims of France against Mexico, atthough such a course may yet appear expedient and proper, in which case the Government of this country will not hesitate to take the responsibility.

The main point sought is to enforce the Monroe Doctrine by removing European intervention from Mexican affairs, and securing to that country a republican form of government. The responsibility of this undertaking has been fully discussed by the Cabinet, and the conclusion has been unanimously arrived at that the time has come for the action indicated in the proceedings above foreshadowed. These proceedings have now taken definite form and shape, and have entered so far into prosecution as to be beyond recall.

A Times Washington special says Governor Swan, of Maryland, had a long interview with the President this morning, continuing up to the moment of the meeting of the Cabinet. He then withdrew until the Cabinet had adjourned, at which ince to the interview was renewed. The subject of the protocode of the returning of the Cabinet had adjourned, at which ince to the interview was treated to the interview was the size of the recent conflict in the South as well as in the North of Europe. Victor Emanuel will be allowed, it is thought, to make his triumphant entry into Venice about the 15th or 20th of this month, and perhaps even without waiting for the accompliance of the recent conflict in the South as well as it is thought, to make his triumphant entry into Venice about the 15th or 20th of this month, and perhaps even without waiting for the accompliance of the recent conflict in the South as well as it will not be sometiment to a course of the recent conflict in the South as well as it will not be allowed, it is thought, to make his triumphant entry into Venice about the 15th or 20th of this month, and perhaps even without waiting for the accompliance of the recent conflict in the South as well as the continuing up to the moment of the metal to the table best of it. An article published in the Memorial Diplomatique, respecting Mexico, has attracted a good deal of notice here among Americans. This European organ has hitherto been always highly favorable to the "Mexican Empire" in its language. Now its eyes seem to have been suddenly opened to the real state of things. It acknowledges that as the French troops retire and concentrate themselves the "insurgents" take undisputed possession of the towns and country. It represents the Juarists as almost completely masters in Juarists as almost completely masters i the North and West, raising their head i troops will leave Mexico in complete anarchy.

The above article has been published in most of the Paris journals, to the great disgust of the Imperial Government, but to the further enlightenment of the French people, who see in it only the fulfilment of their own ominous predictions.

The Journal des Debats of this morning contains a notice, under the signature of Mr. Bigelow, of the change about to take place in the representation of the United States in this capital. The residence of Mr. Bigelow for five years in Paris as Consul-General, and the regrets of his many French friends which will accompany his departure, are alluded to in a very flattering manner by the well-known French academician. The writer then adds, as proof of the voluntary withdrawal of the late Minister, that, in the month of July last, Mr. Bigelow, "naturally desirous to revisit his native country."

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1866

Governor Fenton, of New York lately addressed a letter to a radical meeting at Cooper Institute. The Governor is respectable in everything but his politics. And we may say the same thing of this In the course of it, he says:

But it is claimed that the adoption of the amendment proposed by Congress ought not to be made a condition of reptation; that, however just in ther selves, no constitutional safeguard should be provided which has not been passed upon in Congress by the insurgent States. The weakness of this position is too obvi-ous to deceive any but those who advance it. The President is, doubtless, compe-ters of the provided that the control of the provided that the control of the provided that the provided th ed their own governments established un der the Constitution.

In the first place, the Southern States as their duty required, have re-established their own governments under the Constitution: and the duty of Congress, under the Constitution, is to protect these governments, instead of overthrowing them, and making others. Guaranteeing does not mean creating.

The Constitution indeed declares that the United States shall guarantee to every State a republican form of government but this gives the General Government no right to make a government for a State or to dictate a government to a State, the very definition of a republican government being one which is formed by the governed themselves. That would certainly be a queer form of republican government which Congress should frame and impose upon a State. It might be a ment of the Republican party, but not a republican government. This view of the duty of the General Government is

The General Government, as we have said, is bound to guarantee a republican form of government to a State: but it is State to form their government, and, until they exercise this right, the General Government has nothing to guarantee, and no right to interfere, except to uphold its own rights in the State, and to protect the people in the exercise of the right to form their own government. It is a guarantor not a dictator. If the people should conumaciously refuse to form a government at all, the refusal, in the eye of the Constitution, would be none of the General General Government being to guarantee a republican form of government, when one is in existence, not to put it into existence. Such contumacy undoubtedly would very soon cure itself; but, be this as ed the tremendous powers of the governit might, there would be no other cure un- ment for the last five or six years, have der the Constitution.

The States already have governments republican in form. They do not need the execution of the guarantee. They need recognition only; and, by every consideration of reason and of law, they are entitled to it.

If they are not, then most assuredly ing passage occurs: they are not entitled to take part in amending the Constitution, and the present demand that they shall is unlawful for this reason. And this is our second anver to Governor Fenton. If the South- To the President of the United Ste ern States are not legally in their places in the Union as fully as the States of any other section that content are the states of any our Administration, I most respectfull other section, they cannot ratify a constitutional amendment; if they are, they are legally just as free to reject or ratify as the States of any other section, and, whether they do the one or the other and indeed without any regard to either, are entitled to representation. There is no evading this conclusion.

To say that the Southern States are restored sufficiently to take part in not restored sufficiently to take part in proposing the same amendment, is to say that the less includes the greater. It is an insult to common sense. It is the flower of absurdity. Yet this is the positive of Construction.

As attathul Irlend and supporter of your Administration, I most respectfully potentiation, and stress that send the rebel States. It was failed to obtain any reasonable guarantees for that security in the future which is essential to peace and reconciliation. To my mind, it abandons the freedmen to the control of their ancient masters, and leaves the national debt exposed to repudiation by returning rebels. Yet this is the position of Governor Fenton. We must beg Mr. Sumner had a legal right to send to retort his own sarcasm. "The weakness this despatch to the President; and he of this position is too obvious to deceive also had a legal right to make the Presiany but those who advance it." And we dent pay for it. exchange contains the following sketch of his speech: The Herald affects to be indignant at He declared he addressed his hearers simply as a citizen of the United States and to warn them of impending danger. And he was not alone. William H. Seward, the old Whig leader who finally broke up the Whig party, and built on its ruins the Republican party, who had fought the Democratic party to the knife in the liberation of slaves, and had led his hosts to victory, sees the thickening danger and raises his warning voice. Does he not see that the radical policy is drifting us to perdition?

Gen. Shields then referred to the action of the last Congress. No Congress ever had a higher and nobler work before it. What was that work? To bring back and consummate peace—stable and permanent peace, and to restore the Union by re-establishing civil and religious liberty on the basis of the Constitution. But how had that work been performed? The He declared he addressed his hearers the obstinacy of the South in rejecting the pending amendment, and especially at the wickedness of Governor Humphreys, of Mississippi, in advising the Legislature of that State to reject the amendment. "He tells the Legislature," says the veteran renegade. "that he presumes the mere reading of that amendment will be sufficient to cause its rejection. This attempt to forestall and influence the action of that body deserves the severest con on the basis of the Constitution. But now had that work been performed? The country was left in a far worse condition than when they met. Instead of healing the old wounds, they have opened them afresh and inflicted new ones, making reconciliation more difficult, and postponng the return of concord and peace to an ing the return of concord and peace to an indefinite future.

Look at their legislation with respect to the Southern people. The spirit which runs all through it has no example in the annals of any civilized or Christian people. As one of the results of the war, four millions of slaves were set free. These his official duty. Not to have recom-mended it would have been official recreancy of the vilest description. But to the millions of slaves were set free. These were unfit to take care of themselves, and to ensure them protection a Freedmen's Bureau was instituted, with its countless radicals it is offensive for a Southern man to have an opinion of his own. The liberty enrages them. When they do not deounce it as treason, they resent it as inswarms of agents scattered all over the solence. They treat the Southern people South, at a cost to the country sufficient to defray the entire expense of the Govern-ment during the days of Jackson, Van Bu-ren, and other administrations prior to the late war. And yet in the face of these facts, The Herald, indeed, tells the Southern people that they are no better than slaves -tells them in nearly so many words. the radical Congress insist on throwing these four millions of slaves, whose chains "These old politicians and editors," it have just been stricken off, into the pol-itical arena and investing them with the right to vote. Is there a man with a sound head upon a sound body who does not says, "seem to forget that there has been a tremendous revolution, and that they are a conquered people, entirely at the know that the competition between the white and the black races in the South mercy of their conquerors. Hair-splitting quibbles and arguments about politiwhite and the black races in the South they sought to be fastened on the country would inaugurate the bloody work of extermination? Does he not know that such an infernal policy would brutalize the North and end in the ruin of the United States? That it is war without any of the cal rights are all out of place. The right of the strongest is the only right that governs in their case. Nominally they are in the Union, but practically Congress has states? In a tis war vithous any of the amenities of war—inhuman, unchristian, unmerciful and barbarous? But, it is said, the Southern people are not layal. Do you think by punishing them still more, you can make them loyal? Is this excluded them from being united politically with the North, and it has the power to exclude them indefinitely if the people sustain its action. It is no use to appeal to the Constitution, to the law, to the the way Americans, proud Americans, are to be made loval and faithful to the Government of the United States?

When they excluded eleven States from Congress they struck a death-blow at the system of States established by our fathstruction under the action of the Execuers. On what pretence do they exclude the Southern Representatives? Is it be-cause these States were lately in rebel-lion? No, fellow-citizens, the States are as firmly fixed in our Republican system as the stars in the firmanent, and the powthen, resist? Why destroy themselves by a hopeless conflict with a body as the stars in the liminent, and the power that can strike one State or eleven States out of that system can strike them all out. It was for this principle of the indestructibility of our system of States that we fought the late war to a successful time. We want the victory and estable issue. We won the victory and established for all time the great doctrine that no State or States can ever get out of the Union. The States are not for this generation or the next, but for all generations. They are an essential of our Republicant structure, and you cannot describe the state of the state ly to the Southern people. What do they think of it? Are they almost persuaded? publican structure, and you cannot de stroy a part without destroying the whole

MAYHEM. -On Tuesday night a disturbance occurred at Beck's saloon, in Butchertown, which resulted in a free fight. During the melee a butcher named Gotteb Layer bit off a portion of George Goble's ear. He was arrested by Officer Hipwell, and the case came up in the Police Court yesterday morning and was continued till this morning. MISPLACED CONFIDENCE.-A lady living on High street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, had a gallant young gentleman boarding withher. He seemed to be a very quiet and nice young man, so remains of C. H. W. Bent were to have much so that the lady entrusted some forty dollars to his keeping. He and the money both disappeared the next day, and all inquiries, so far, have failed to show his whereabouts. New Music.-The latest publication of music by Mr. D. P. Faulds is a romance entitled "Maiden's Dream." It is the composition of Mr. R. T. Dear Sir: I have examined your Stomach Bitters carefully, and found it what you represent it to be. The high order which the ingredients, going into it, take in the Materia Medica as well as the most happily proportioned combination of the substances make your bitters far superior to any similar preparation in this country. The fact that you use only the purest Bourbon Whisky, must necessarily recommend your bitters in another point, par-ticularly as far as wholesomeness and palatability is taken into consideration. I was very well pleased to see in your establishment the process of manufacturing your bitters carried on by way of displacement, which not only gives your better product, but recommends itself by

We al-lude to the abduction of Lieut Hampton and his cold-blooded and fiendish murder d his coid-blooded and menusial infract-a gang of unmitigated villains from cluster or Hopkins county, Ky. The orrid details of this terrible tragedy are all fresh in the minds of all—how these bed, from the arms of his devoted wife, carried him across the river, and there foully murdered him in cold blood, and then threw his mangled and bleeding body into the Ohio river. These facts were all that were announced. Many interesting circumstances connected with the affair have been kept profoundly secret. GREAT FIRE IN NASHVILLE.

A Million Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed. The Conflagration Still in

We write with the sound of crackling flames in our ears, and the wild roar of one of the greatest conflagrations ever witnessed in Nashville, rolling on in its wild, unabated and furious career.

About one o'clock this morning, fire broke out in or near the drug store of W. H. Hasslock, and spread with fearful rapidity on either side. But a short time sufficed to wrap the whole front on Cedar street, from the little alley running back from Cedar street toward Deaderick the buildings for two-thirds of the distance on this street, between Cherry and the Square, were one mass of surging flame. The engines were plied with desperate energy, and the firemen labored with unrelaxing vigor, but the devouring element spread on, licking up with a fierce insatiability the structures which it had wrapped in its fatal embrace.

The small wooden building on Deaderick street, opposite the Republican Banner office, burned with a furnace heat and fierceness, throwing a profusion of burning cinders upon the roofs of the buildings across the street. Fire soon broke out in the rear of the Banner office, and that and several adjoining buildings were soon in flames. The Banner office was burned completely to the ground. They succeeded in saving their forms, the office files, a large number of cases and all the papers in the office. The presses and more cumbersome pieces of furniture were lost. This will be a heavy stroke to the Banner, and the public will sympathize with their loss. We understand that they were insured for a considerable amount, but not sufficient to cover losses.

At this time the scene was sublime in the extreme, the whole half square bounded by Cherry and Deaderick streets was one wild sea of flames, whose surging billows rolled high above the fatal buildings.
